FOHIRAB

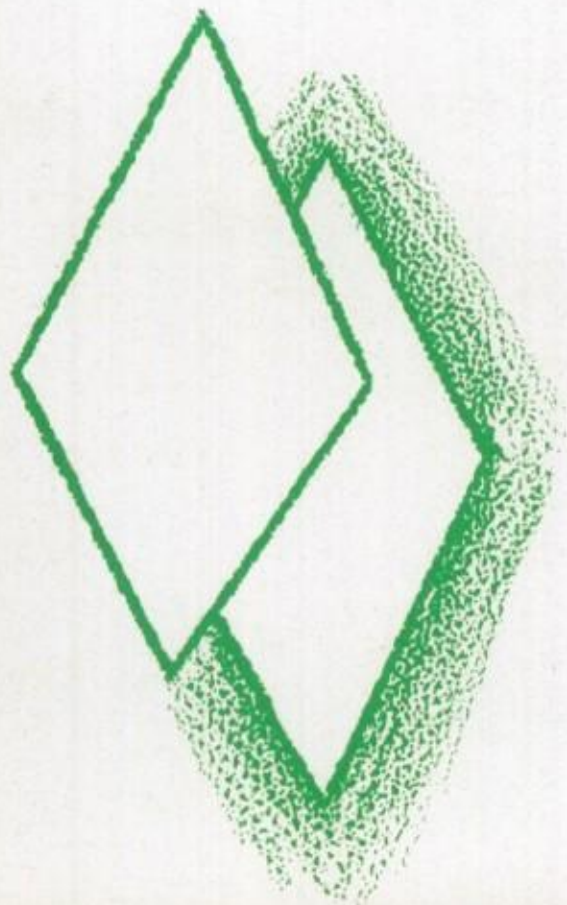

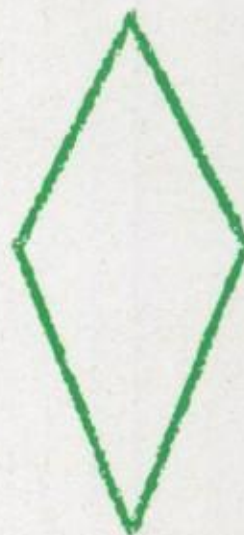

Dedication

Every great bridge that is built, every great building that is erected costs dearly in human life and sacrifice. Everything in this world has a price. The more desirable the goal, the greater is the cost. Each worthwhile thing must be pulled forth from the universe.

We have spent twelve busy, happy years in school. We have lived well during this short period. Even though at times we have seemed thoughtless and unappreciative, we have been conscious of the silent hands that have been working for us.

To you who have made our education possible, to you who have made the sacrifice and paid the price, to you—"OUR PARENTS" we dedicate this book.

We, the annual staff of '59, would publicly like to make some acknowledgements. To Mr. Thompson and his stage crew for trying so hard to please us whenever we needed the stage or stage equipment; to Mr. and Mrs. Reid Homerick and John Sharp for coming to FHS to take pictures at only a moment's notice; to Judson Rinebold and Phyllis Gilliland of The Gray Printing Company who had to put up with our never-ending problems; to O. K. Caldwell who let us use school time for pictures and tried to help us in everyway so that things ran smoothly; to all the teachers who were patient enough to let us out of class or let their classes be interrupted for annual work, and most of all, to Barbara Moore, our adviser, for knowing just when to push us so we would make our deadlines and all the other million and one things she did to help us. To all of you and the many more there were, we would like to say, "THANKS."
